Wagman Completes Transformation of New 1741 Club at PeoplesBank Park

(York, Pa.) Wagman Construction has completed renovations on the new 1741 Club at PeoplesBank Park in downtown York, Pa.

The stadium's former White Rose Hall has been converted into the 1741 Club, named for the year York was founded. The 3,200 square-foot space was designed to be targeted as an attractive and relaxed venue for businesses taking out club memberships. The venue features new ceilings, windows that can be opened to overlook the field, and new seating and food areas. A portion of the venue, the Lafayette Room, can be partitioned off for private events.

Down the hall, five skyboxes have been repurposed to be used as nightly game rentals or to host private events throughout the year. The room can be used as one venue to host a total of 70 people or as separate entities with the use of a divider.

"Wagman was brought into producing the outcome we needed within our budget and focused on meeting our needs through the construction process," said Eric Menzer, president of York Professional Baseball Club, LLC. "The quality of the work is outstanding, and they hit the schedule to the hour. It's a great result from top to bottom."

This was not Wagman's first project at the stadium. Wagman was involved with the original stadium, from site selection and development to construction management for pre-construction and construction for the stadium which opened with 4,900 seats, 20 skyboxes, amusement area concessions and multipurpose spaces in 2007.
