Dickinson College's Kline Fitness Center Receives LEED Gold Certification

(York, Pa.) Wagman Construction, Inc. constructed the Kline Fitness Center for Dickinson College in Carlisle, PA in accordance to Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) standards and is thrilled to announce the project recently received LEED Gold Certification. Some of the project's LEED strategies included utilizing certified wood, reviewing individual materials for recycled content percentage, monitoring outdoor air delivery, and off-site sorting. In addition, the project also includes green features like a sun screen system, full building automation (BAS), lighting controls, storm water management system, thermoplastic polyolefin (TPO) roofing system, and rubber recycled flooring.

LEED is the most widely used green building rating system in the world and an international symbol of excellence in green building. Developed by the U.S. Green Building Council (USGBC), LEED certification ensures electricity cost savings, lower carbon emissions and healthier environments for the places we live, work, learn, play and worship. The certification is proof that buildings are going above and beyond to ensure the building is constructed and operated to the highest level of sustainability.
